

Winterseasonal October 1st 2021, Het Rijk van Nunspeet

The 4th and last Seasonal of this year was at Het Rijk van Nunspeet. We started off with 22 subscriptions, but ended up with 16. Sometimes due to health issues, and sometimes because of the weather forecast. Which was a pity, because although the forecast was rain and high winds, the early starters only had two short showers, and hardly any wind, as the course is sheltered by pine trees. Occasionally the sun even came through for a bit.

Those same pine trees seemed to create a bit of a challenge for the long hitters under the men. And if you missed the trees you might still find some big natural bunkers, or heather. In short: a nice course!

The deal with Het Rijk van Nunspeet was really good. The full arrangement entailed greenfee, coffee and cake upon arrival, borrelhapjes, two drinks and a main course, all for 100.- euro. Friendly service.
